Dan Lok is a Chinese-Canadian business magnate and global educator best known for being the founder and chairman of Closers.com – the world’s #1 SaaS platform which connects companies to closers. Beyond Closers.com, Mr. Lok has led several global movements to redefine modern education where Mr. Lok has taught men and women from 130+ countries to develop high income skills, unlock true financial confidence and master their financial destinies.

Dan is definitely at the top of his game which is far from his humble beginnings. While being born in Hong Kong, at the age of 14, Dan and his family moved to Canada with the hopes of starting a new life. As a young teenager he experienced culture shock when his dad went bankrupt and stayed in Hong Kong while he and his mother moved into a small one-bedroom apartment in Canada; barely getting by. His father was not able to send money for support leaving Dan’s mother, who had a limited skill, to bring in the money. Dan started his first and only 9-5 job at 16 bagging grocery, entered college, and dropped out when he took a formal mentorship with Alan Jacques in copywriting vowing to be successful and take care of both of his parents.

Dan failed at 13 ventures before he finally experienced success. Dan admits that if he could change anything about his past he would not have started all of those foolish business endeavors that ultimately ended in failure. He blames desperation for the doomed business ventures that drained his resources, wasted his time, and hijacked his focus.

In the 2000s, Dan took a deep dive into the internet-marketing industry and accrued substantial profits from his internet & technology businesses. By age 27, he became a self-made millionaire. Shortly after, an 8-figure entrepreneur.

Beyond his success in business, Mr. Lok was also a two times TEDx opening speaker. An international best-selling author of over a dozen books. A member of Young Presidents Organization (YPO) – a private group of global chief executives who’s companies employ 16 million people and generate 6-trillion USD in annual revenues. And he is also the host of The Dan Lok Show – a series featuring billionaire tycoons and millionaire entrepreneurs.

Today, Mr. Lok continues to be featured in thousands of media channels and publications every year and is widely seen as one of the top business leaders by millions around the world.
